The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs has appointed Mr. Walter Wallace to serve as a Constitutional Commissioner "to review and report on the working of the Turks and Caicos Islands Constitution Order 1988, and related matters," the Governor's office announced December 12.

A press release from the Governor's office said the appointment was made at the request of the TCI Government.

Mr. Wallace is currently the Adviser on Dependent Territories in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He is also a former Governor of the British Virgin Islands and has conducted major constitutional reviews in St. Helena and, together with Sir Frederick Smith, in the Cayman Islands. He is no stranger to the Turks and Caicos Islands, having visited the Islands on many occasions in the last ten years, his most recent visit being in April 1990.

Mr. Wallace plans to arrive in the Islands towards the end of January and to spend three to four weeks here, during which time he will hold discussions with His Excellency the Governor Mr. Michael J. Bradley, Members of the Executive Council, senior civil servants and others.

He will also hold public meetings in Grand Turk and in the other Islands and members of the public who wish to make written submissions - or who wish to present their views in person - should send their submissions in writing or their requests for interviews to the Secretary, Constitutional Commission (care of Governor's Office) no later than January 22,1992.

Operation Crackdown

Immigration Officers will be doing extensive checks on job sites and districts within the Turks and Caicos Islands in a major crackdown against persons breaching the country's immigration laws, Director of Immigration, Tom Saunders has announced.

Saunders says "Operation Crackdown" will be launched in January and will be directed against:

* Persons found in the Islands contrary to the Immigration Laws of the Islands;

* Persons found employing non-belongers contrary to the Immigration Laws of the Islands; and, against

* Persons found working in the Islands contrary to the Immigration Laws of the Islands.

"All persons who require to have a permit will be required to produce such permit to the Officer on request. In the event that they have not yet received their permits, the production of a Government Treasury official receipt showing that the permit was paid for will be sufficient to satisfy the Officer that an application for their permit has been filed," Saunders said in a statement sent to the Free Press.

He continued: "This information is made simply for the benefit of all would-be offenders. The Public is advised to familiarise themselves with the provisions of the Immigration Ordinance that relate to non-belongers working and residing in the Islands."

POST PAN AM BLUES

Govt. Rescues Stranded Travellers after Pan Am's Sudden Collapse

When Pan Am closed its ticket counters Wednesday, December 4, leaving thousands of passengers stranded and bewildered, those destined for the Turks and Caicos Islands were rescued from the post Pan Am blues by the quick action of the T & C Government.

Transportation Minister Hon. Mike Misick, Director of Tourism Cliff Hamilton, and the Chief Minister, Hon. Washington Misick, promptly arranged alternate transportation for residents and tourists trying to get to and from Provo.

The Chief Minister, returning from a three-week official trip that took him to Europe and to the United States, was himself stranded on the final leg home.

As passengers milled about in the Pan Am departure lounge or gave interviews to the TV and other media reps covering the abrupt closure of the world's once premiere airline, a rumour circulated that Washington Misick had made arrangements with Carnival Air for a charter flight to Provo.

The rumour wasn't quite accurate for, in fact, the initial contact with Carnival Air in Florida was made from Grand Turk through the efforts of Mike Misick, Cliff Hamilton and the Civil Aviation authorities. They then advised Washington Misick, who coordinated the Miami arrangements.

Some of the initial uncertainties experienced by passengers at the Miami International Airport were also experienced by outgoing passengers at a crowded Provo International Airport where there were mixed messages about exactly what was taking place.

Early reports received by Free Press said that the Pan Am flight was being replaced by Cayman Airways and that that Cayman Airways flight was scheduled to arrive at 1:30 pm.

By 1:30, the new arrival time was said to be 2:30 pm. Then the ETA (Expecvted Time of Arrival) was changed to 3:30 pm. And, so it continued.

Eventually, a Boeing 737 touched down shortly before 5:00 pm with the Chief Minister and 123 other passengers from Miami. Many were surprised when they realised that it was a Carnival Airlines - and not a Cayman Airways - flight.

Valerie Brown, of Renfrew, Ontario who travelled that day to Provo, shared some of her experiences with the Free Press.

"I checked in at Pan Am early Wednesday morning and was given a boarding pass. When I arrived at the departure gate, there was a sign saying the flight had been cancelled, so I returned to the ticket desk. There was no one there at all," Brown explained.

She returned to the departure area, where Pan Am passengers were excitedly and heatedly discussing the situation. While there, an official at the airport advised most passengers to go to American Airlines, but when he got to the Provo group, he didn't know what to tell them.

It was at that stage that she heard from another passenger, that the Chief Minister of the Turks and Caicos was also scheduled to fly to Provo on the the (cancelled Pan Am) flight and that he had arranged for a special charter, on Carnival Air, to get them all to Provo.

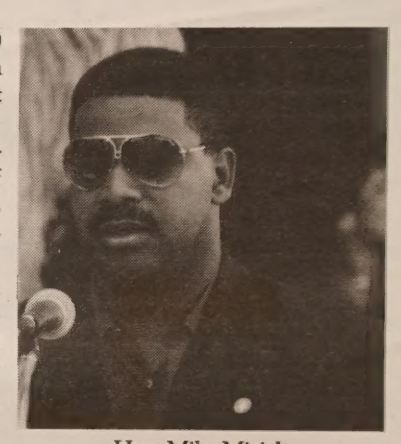
They all "trooped down" to another departure gate, where the Chief Minister had organised passengers into two groups - residents and visitors.

"We were very impressed with the Chief Minister. He wrote out tickets, checked baggage and reassured us. Then we boarded the plane, at about 3:00 pm. Mr. Misick was the last person to board the plane and we all cheered and applauded him when he entered the cabin," Brown told Free Press.

The charter cost her $150.00, and she said she doesn't know if she'll get it back. "It doesn't much matter to me, but some of the younger people on the plane were worried about it. I have travelled so much that the situation didn't upset me. I look at it as an adventure - not a catastrophe," Brown explained.

Michael Griffith, manager of the Ramada Resort and Casino, was also aboard the plane, returning to Provo for Ramada's annual Christmas Party that night. He told his guests at the party Washington Misick's 'taking charge' and handling of the potentially disastrous situation gave him increased confidence in the Turks and Caicos.

Chief Minister, Hon. Washington Misick, assists in "checking- in" passengers for the Carnival Airlines flight from Miami to Provo. Ramada's GM, Mike Griffith is at counter.



Hon. Mike Misick

Several other passengers were loud in their praises for the Chief Minister, in particular, and the TCI Government, in general, for the manner in which they handled the crisis.

One returning resident noted that the Chief Minister ensured that all TC Islanders and other residents - including himself who is not a belonger - who hadn't the funds to buy tickets, having already spent most of their money in the US, were provided with tickets on credit.

At the Provo end where the wait was a particularly long one for the 86 passengers who eventually left aboard the Carnival flight for Miami, Charles Air Services remained a hive of activity all afternoon as the action shifted away from the Pan Am/TCNA counter in the south-eastern section of the terminal.

And, in a spirit of co-operation, evidently with the TCI's tourist industry and national interest in mind, at least one senior officer of the Tourism Department was seen assisting the Charles Air staff in dealing with the post-Pan Am blues.

Later that evening, Transportation and Communications Minister, Mike Misick went on Radio Turks and Caicos (RTC) to outline the steps the government had taken to deal with the crisis and to assure the public that the situation was under control.

To the relief of many, he announced that arrangements had been firmed up earlier that evening with Cayman Airways "after hours of endless conversations with the Managing Director," for daily flights for the remainder of the week.

And, according to the Chief Minister, who spoke briefly with Free Press the morning after the Pan Am capitulation, Cayman Airways will fly to Provo every day until the situation is stabilized.

He also disclosed that government was also talking to other major air carriers, including American Airlines, about picking up the Turks and Caicos route.

POST PAN AM BLUES

Gov't. in post-Pan Am talks with other airlines

- we have been vindicated says official -

The Turks and Caicos Government is continuing negotiations with a number of airlines as it seeks to put in place reliable air transport arrangements in the wake of Pan Am's December 4 collapse.

According to Hon. Mike Misick, Minister responsible for communications, transport and National Insurance, the airlines include American, Continental, USAir, Delta and BWIA.

Hon. Misick told the December meeting of the Grand Turk Chamber of Commerce that Cayman Airways is currently filling the gaps left by Pan Am. Pan Am's collapse which left thousands of passengers stranded and cost some 8,000 workers their jobs, was announced after its management had failed to work out a bail-out deal with TWA in the wake of a failed earlier attempt to sew up a deal with Delta.

The collapse came after 11 years of losses which are said to have topped the $2.5 billion mark.

Meanwhile, according to Government Economist Richard Stoneman, who had played a major role in firming up the agreement for Cayman Airways' return to the TCI earlier this year, as a result of Pan Am's collapse, the Turks and Caicos Government has been vindicated.

The agreement had been much criticised by the press as well as by the then opposition Progressive National Party (PNP) and Stoneman had been quoted at the time as stressing that Pan Am's future was very uncertain and the agreement with Cayman Airways was the TCI's insurance policy against Pan Am's collapse.

Shortly after the PNP won the April 3 elections and formed the Government, it acknowledged that there was merit in the agreement and later proceeded to extend the controversial and expensive joint Government-private sector guarantee as a result of which Cayman Airways was compensated for flights on which there was not a minimum number of passengers.

"We have been vindicated. A reliable airline service is the this country's lifeline," Stoneman told the Free Press in an invited comment a few days after Pan Am had "fallen out of the sky" - a collapse which took place in the midst of the TCI's vital tourist season.

Stoneman says that in the wake of the Pan Am collapse, a major thrust would have to be to ensure that no airline ever again has a virtual monopoly over airline services to and from the TCI.

He also pointed out that as a result of competition between Pan Am and Cayman Airways, fares between the TCI and Miami were brought down.

Meanwhile, since the Pan Am collapse, fares for flights between the TCI and Miami have been increased to $247 for a seven-day ticket and to $308 for a one-year (return) ticket.

HMG congratulates TCI on successful extradition of alleged drug trafficker

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London, has written Governor Michael J. Bradley congratulating all those who were "involved in the capture, detention and successful extradition of Robert Serry to the United States."

The congratulatory note was sent by the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, Mr. Mark Lennox-Boyd who asked Governor Bradley to pass on his "personal congratulations" to all those who were involved in Serry's capture, detention and extradition.

Serry, alias Hugo Villaba and "Frenchie", is a Colombian national of French extraction said to be one of the Drug kingpins linked to the notorious Medellin (drug) cartel in Colombia.

He was being hunted by the US authorities who wanted him to answer drug trafficking and conspiracy charges. When he touched down at the Grand Turk International Airport in a small private aircraft, reportedly to refuel, on March 30, he was arrested and detained after he was found travelling on false documents.

He escaped from the Grand Turk jail on October 8 while awaiting extradition to the United States but was recaptured one week later and subsequently extradited to the USA.

"We now understand that his capture is judged by the American authorities to be a particularly significant victory in the international campaign against narcotics trafficking," Lennox-Boyd said in his official note to Governor Bradley.

He continued: "It is gratifying that the diligence and professionalism of the Royal Turks and caicos Islands Police, the Customs Service and the Attorney General's Chambers should be highlighted so publicly in this way. It brings great credit to the Islands which is well deserved."

Pan Am Sells LA Routes

Pan Am, once one of the world's leading airlines, which collapsed on December 4, has sold its lucrative Latin American routes to United Airlines for $135 million in a bankruptcy auction on December 9.

A few months ago United Airlies had tried to buy the routes - Pan Am's most lucrative routes - for nearly $200 million.

At the December 9, late-night auction which was ordered so that money could be raised for Pan Am's creditors, Pan Am also sold a New York-to-Mexico route for $25 million to Delta Airlines.

Meanwhile, in other news from the airline industry, TWA and Continental Airlines have started exploratory talks about a possible merger.

The two are considered two of the USA's weakest airlines. And, according to a report published by USA Today, TWA plans to "file a prepackaged bankruptcy plan early next year," while Continental which is also in talks with North West Airlines and USAir, "already is in Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection."

Br. Red Cross official Visits TCI as Haitian refugee alert continues

A senior official of the British Red Cross visited the Turks and Caicos recently as the country continues to make contingency plans in the event of an influx of Haitian refugees here.

According to Mr. Hartley Coalbrooke, a member of the TCI Red Cross Committee, the official, Mr. Martin Fisher of the International Aid Department of British Red Cross, visited the TCI "as a result of reports that the islands could be faced with an influx of Haitian refugees."

The reports stem from an increased number of Haitians fleeing their homeland where the social, economic and human rights situation continues to deteriorate in the wake of the September 30 military overthrow of the country's first democratically elected President, Jean Bertrand Aristide, and the subsequent military clampdown on persons opposed to the new rulers.

The trade embargo against Haiti imposed by the Organisation of American States (OAS) is also said to be serving as a catalyst for the deteriorating situation.

Coalbrooke explained that as a result of the reports, it was necessary that the British Red Cross should have a first hand assessment of the contingency plans being made here "in case assistance was required from them."

He also explained that the TCI Red Cross Committee is a branch of British Red Cross.

While here, Fisher toured North Base in Grand Turk and took photographs of "the facilities which may be used to house Haitian refugees if they arrive in the islands," Coalbrooke explained.

Fisher also met with His Excellency the Governor, Mr. Michael Bradley who is heading a local committee discussing and formulating the contingency plans; Acting Chief Secretary, Mr. Austin Robinson; Acting Financial Secretary, Mr. Hartley Coalbrooke; the President and members of the TCI Red Cross Committee; and, personnel from the TCI Public Works Department.

The TCI Government's concerns about the likely implications for the TCI should there be an influx of Haitian refugees here, was also discussed by Chief Minister, Hon. C. Washington Misick when he met recently with senior officials of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and of the Overseas Development Administration in London.

Meanwhile, to date, while the exodus of Haitians from Haiti continue, there has not been a reported increase in arrivals here.

However, according to Voice of America (VOA) reports, the US immigration authorities have reported that since October 29, the US Coast Guard rescued some 7,000 fleeing Haitians from aboard small boats at sea.

The Haitians who are seeking refugee status in the United States were being accommodated either at the refugee camp set up by the US authorities at Guantanamo Base or aboard US Coast Guard ships.

Amidst all this, the Haitian Refugee Centre in Miami, Florida, and the US Government, have been engaging each other in a court duel over the internationally much-criticised US policy of seeking to return the fleeing Haitians to Haiti under a 1981 Haiti-US Bilateral agreement.

The centre won the first round when a Federal District Judge in Miami issued a temporary order restraining the US Government from repatriating the Haitian refugees.

The US Government, claiming that most of the Haitians are fleeing for economic - and not political reasons - appealed against the judge's decision .

Up to press time, only about 900 of the more than 4,600 refugees interviewed by the US immigration authorities had been found to have plausible grounds to pursue asylum in the United States.

PHMC

PHMC stays closed Impasse continues

The Public Health Medical Centre (PHMC) in Providenciales remained closed over the last three weeks as the impasse between the PHMC Board and Dr. Francis Gilbert continued.

The impasse started with the Board's firing of Dr. Gilbert last month and its appointing of Dr. Jim Shipley to succeed him.

Shipley has since been charged by the immigration authorities for working without a work permit. However, a source close to the Board told the Free Press that a key issue in view of the charges, is whether doctors appointed by the Board and working at the centre are required to have work permits.

He explained that in keeping with an agreement with the Turks and Caicos Government, doctors working at the centre are not required to have work permits and while Dr. Gilbert had worked at the centre for several years, the Board had never secured a work permit for him either.

Meanwhile, the board's firing of Dr. Gilbert has met with widespread public condemnation and a special committee, the Provo Citizens' Committee headed by Pastor James Williams, has been formed to pursue demands that Gilbert be reinstated.

Some members of the committee turned up at Paul Kott's offices at Provo Power Company and, in a stormy session to which the police were summoned, demanded the keys to the centre.

Kott eventually handed over the keys to the centre to Hon. Wendal Swann, Member of Legislative Council for Provo.

However, with the Board responsible for appointing persons to work at the centre, and with Shipley having been charged, the impasse continues and the centre remains closed.

The committee has, meanwhile, staged a public rally Downtown, Provo at which several speakers criticised the Board and demanded Gilbert's reinstatement.

Among those who addressed the meeting were were Communications and Transportation Minister, Hon. Mike Misick, Hon. Swann, Pastors James Williams, Tom Rigby and Derek Hamilton; Leading PNP members Joe Hall and Conrad Howell; and businesswoman Stephanie Duncanson of Women's Aglow.

Investment Bank slated for Turks & Caicos in 1992

The Turks and Caicos is likely to have an investment bank by late 1992.

That is the latest word from the Chief Minister, Hon. C. Washington Misick, who recently returned home after a three-week official trip which took him to Europe and the United States and during which he held discussions about the setting up of the investment bank.

The Government had originally planned to set up what it had referred to as a Development Corporation.

However, according to an official government statement, following talks with officials of the European Investment Bank (EIB) "the Chief Minister (now) favours the establishment of an investment bank instead of a development corporation as previously envisaged."

The proposals for the setting up of an investment bank instead of a development corporation have, meanwhile, been endorsed by participants - including several leading private sector personalities - who attended a December 12 workshop convened by Government to discuss plans for the setting up of a private-public sector forum to promote the TCI's development in keeping with the government's motto of "progress through partnership."

The statement said Hon. Misick's visit to the EIB was "highly successful" and it confirmed that bank's interest in helping to fund the setting up of the local investment bank which will be "a private sector company with interest and board representation by the TCI Government."

The Commonwealth Development Corporation (CDC) also expressed an interest in providing funding and technical assistance for the setting up of the bank.

"The Investment Bank will have as its objectives, the identification of projects, provision of medium and long term loans, equity participation, management of funds, promotion of specialised financial institutions, the issuance of guarantees, financial advisory and investment banking services," the statement said.

It said that in addition to funds from EIB and CDC, the investment bank will seek the participation of local and international banks operating in the TCI as well as the participation of other corporate entities and private individuals.

"The terms of reference for the new institution are being developed and at least one person has been identified to assist in the preparation and establishment of the bank," the Government said.

PRIDE gets new executives

The foundation for the Protection of Reefs and Islands from Degradation and Exploitation (PRIDE) has revamped its administration in the Turks and Caicos and its daily operations are now being run by Ms. Ethlyn Gibbs-Williams as Executive Director and Mike Dowling as Marine Programme Director.

Both jobs are full-time and the new appointments took effect on December 9.

A press release from the foundation which has been playing a leading role in environmental protection and conservation matters in the TCI, also says that PRIDE's Board of Directors in the TCI has been reorganised to include more representatives from the local community.

Hitherto, PRIDE's operations in the TCI were run by Chuck Hess and Barbara Young.

However, in keeping with the new arrangements, in addition to Hess (the President) and Young, local building contractor Leroy Penn; Permanant Secretary in the Chief Minister's Office, Mr. Royal Robinson; Manager of the insurance company Hope-Hamilton and Pratt, Ms. Hope Hamilton; and a representative of the Ministry of Natural Resources, will serve as members of the Board.

The foundation says it has been "very active in many conservation and educational activities in the past" and that with the public's continuing support, it "will go forward in the future for the benefit of these beautiful islands and the people who live here."

Meanwhile, Ms. Gibbs-Williams takes with her, to the Foundation, three years of experience as Director of the Turks and Caicos Development Trust where she was responsible for the development and implementation of several environmental projects such as the production of a poster for the National Parks and the production of a children's environmental magazine.

She has also assisted in co-ordinating several community projects including a science teachers workshop and has a long-standing interest in conservation and environmental education.

Her new responsibilities as PRIDE's Executive Director will include the managing and organising of all the foundation's land-based programmes such as its environmental and conservation awareness programmes, and its research and outreach programmes.

Dowling's responsibilities as Marine Programme Director will include the managing and organising of all the foundation's water-based programmes and activities. These will include the monitoring of the TCIs' Cetacea population and the setting up of scuba and skin-diving courses for interested members of the public.

Dowling, a master scuba diver and trainer with a keen interest in marine conservation, spent the last year as Operations Manager with the dolphin rehabilitation programme which resulted in three Atlantic Bottlenose dolphins - Rocky, Missy and Silver - being rehabilitated before being granted their freedom to roam the Atlantic as they please.

Before coming to the TCI, Dowling had served for 12 years as a fire officer with the Fire and Rescue Service in England.

The PRIDE press release says Dowling is particularly keen on working with children and that while serving with the Fire and Rescue Service in England, he gained considerable experience in management, organisation, human relations and instructional techniques.

Dowling, the press release also says, "hopes to start work in setting up a voluntary Fire Service on Providenciales."

New Chief Secretary selected

Mr. Mark Forrester, 46, the current Head of Personnel with a big London financial firm, has been selected to be the Turks and Caicos Islands new Chief Secretary.

Forrester who is expected to take up his position in late January or early February will play a leading role in implementing the government's public sector reform programme.

He was selected for the top TCI public service job by a panel which included Chief Minister Hon. C. Washington Misick and it was the first time that the TCI Government was directly involved in the selecting of such a top-level civil servant for service in the TCI.

The selection panel met in London on November 18, 19, and 27 to interview the eight candidates.

An official statement from the TCI Government said the Overseas Development Administration (ODA) has been charged with completing Forrester's recruitment and it is expected that Forrester will visit the TCI from January 6 - 9.

The statement also explained that "another individual has been identified as a substitute should the recruitment of Mr. Forrester fall through." It did not name the "substitute".

As Head of Personnel with the financial firm where he is employed, Forrester is currently in charge of a staff of some 1,400 people, worldwide and has had valuable experience in the area of "change management."

Forrester who previously headed up the Merchant Banking Division of Jonathan Rand Ltd., and who once served as a Senior Assistant Director and Head of Personnel with a UK Bank with international branches and a staff of some 950 officers, is a Fellow of the British Institute of Management and a member of the Public Institute of Management.

Before entering the private sector, Forrester served for 16 years in Her Majesty's Civil Service - including a stint in Lagos Nigeria - and served as a private secretary to former British Prime Ministers, Edward Heath and Harold Wilson.

In the TCI, he will succeed Paul Fabian who returned to England last August after a one-year stint. His deputy will be Mark Capes who is based in Providenciales.

The Public Sector reform programme is expected to be implemented over a two year period at a

LETTERS/OPINION

Customs tariff Order 1991, A Brussels monster?

Dear Editor,

The following comments are submitted in connection with the Customs Tariff Order 1991. This new legislation will provide no extra revenue and would impose unnecessary burdens on the 300 importers of the Islands.

The existing tariff was introduced on 1st April, 1989. It was well prepared by eminent English customs experts to enable the computer analysis of all the principal imports of the colony. The preamble states: "It is appreciated that the revised Bill of Entry and the new import procedure are a radical departure from current procedure. However, it is considered that the new entry forms will provide an overall improvement in the processing of all importers' goods, while at the same time increasing the Customs Department capability to collect and protect the revenue."

The computers have only now been installed, but instead of giving the system referred to above a fair trial, it is now proposed by the 1991 Tariff to substitute a massive and inappropriate European Industrial Tariff, which will place a severe burden on all Turks and Caicos Islands importers. Due to inadequate storage facilities (bonds) at all ports of entry, it has in the past been found imperative to simplify the Customs procedure so that goods can be delivered ex-ship's side immediately on arrival. At present, entries can be prepared in about 30 minutes. The proposed new Tariff would occasion delays of at least 24 hours in the preparation of a container entry, due to the mass of detail required. In the meanwhile, the accumulated goods could not be accommodated in the existing warehouse space.

The new tariff is unsuitable for these islands. It was copied from the Brussels Industrial model, which was not designed for small islands. It provides for atomic reactors, railroads and complicated textile classifications. The majority of items listed would never be imported in the Islands. Here we have a massive waste of paper and money! The Tariff of 1st April 1989 was especially designed for the economy of the Islands and it would be a great mistake to abandon this for the Brussels monster.

The new system will attract increased costs: In terms of paper work, time and extra Customs staff, the new system could cost ten times more than the simple existing tariff. The 1989 Tariff was condensed in 14 pages whereas the Brussels monster absorbs a total off 275 pages and must be purchased at $75.00 per copy plus masses of paper forms.

There is a lack of skilled customs brokers: In most cases, the technical details required could only be prepared by qualified customs brokers, who are unavailable. To prepare an entry for an assorted container would now require some 40 entry forms as against four for the current tariff.

The number of bonded warehouses is inadequate: Before the introduction of the new tariff, the Government would be obliged to construct adequate bonded warehouses to take care of the thousands of cases of goods that could no longer be cleared immediately ex-ship side because of the delays caused by the proposed new system.

The cost of living will rise because of the new tariff: The cost of extra warehousing, double truckage, etc. will increase the price of goods to the consumer by at least ten per cent.

Unavailable information: The new tariff requires certain useless information which cannot be provided by most Miami suppliers; e.g. country of origin, net weights, textile and plant classification.

The chief victims of the new system will be the small out Island importers, who will have no facilities to expedite clearance or storage of goods since all entries must be sent to Grand Turk or Provo for processing.

Sincerely,

H.E. Sadler

Customs Dept. appeals for better understanding of new TCI computerised Tariff system, ASYCUDA

EDITOR'S NOTE: ASYCUDA, the new computerized tariff system being introduced by the Turks and Caicos Customs Department, is generating some controversy (see our Letters to the Editor section). As a public service, we publish here, an appeal by the Customs Department for patience and for a better understanding of what the new system is all about.

It is recognised there is a need to modernise the collection of revenue and trade statistical data by the Customs Department. The Government has agreed to implement a computerised system known as ASYCUDA (The Automated System for Customs Data). The system has been refined and developed by the United Nations from a system originating in the ECOWAS countries of West Africa and is being implemented in developing countries throughout the world with the backing of the Customs Cooperation Council.

The system requires a new Customs Tariff which is meantime being written by the Customs Department. The new tariff will consist of approximately 500 tariff heading which will assist in specifically identifying items which are imported.

Consideration is being given to introducing a new Customs entry form. If adopted, the new form will require more information than is currently required. Because of this, computerised system codes will be required to be used to identify the commodity to be imported, the Customs procedure (ie. is it a duty entry, a warehouse entry or an exemption entry for a development order etc.), the country of consignment, the mode of transport etc. These codes will be published will in advance and will also be included in the new tariff publication.

It is intended to hold seminars for the public to explain the new tariff and Customs entry form. These will be run by the Customs Department with assistance from Customs computer experts based in Antigua. The dates and venues for these seminars will be advised will in advance.

"HELP" desks will be set up in Customs Offices, and a Customs Officer will be designated in each office to assist importers in completing the new form and to give advice on the new tariff.

It is hoped ASYCUDA will provide a more efficient Customs clearing system. This had been the result in other countries where ASYCUDA has been implemented.

Please bear with us. The new tariff, the new entry form and the computerised system will be of benefit to all concerned.

Trusts and establishing trusts in the Turks & Caicos Islands

EDITORS NOTE: This first in a series of four articles is an adaptation of a pamphlet published by KPMG Peat Marrick, one of the world's largest firms of Chartered accountants and consultants which operates in the Turks and Caicos Islands. The purpose is to help promote a better and wider understanding of aspects of the TCI's fledgling offshore finance industry.

In its simplest form a trust is established when a person, the settlor, transfers property into the possession of another, the trustee, who becomes the registered owner of the property but holds it for the benefit of a third party, the beneficiary.

This trust relationship could be relected in a formal legal document, either a Trust Agreement or a Declaration of Trust by the trustee, or it may not even be documented.

Trusts are established for a variety of reasons:

* Tax Planning;
* Confidentiality;
* Asset protection; and
* Estate planning

Trustees: Whatever the reason for establishing a trust, the most important decision to be made by the settlor is the selection of a trustee because registered ownership of any property settled into a trust transfers to the trustee.

Trust companies, or banks with considerable experience and an excellent international reputation, are often chosen to act as trustees.

The Turks and Caicos Islands Trusts Ordinance 1990 is among the most recent trust legislation to be introduced in the world and brings the Islands into line with the major offshore finance jurisdictions.

Salient features of the Turks and Caicos Islands Trust Ordinance 1990 include:

* No audit requirement unless the conditions of the trust specify otherwise.
* No rule against perpetuities. Thus a trust can continue indefinitely.
* Creditors of the settlor cannot reach trust assets if the settlor was not rendered insolvent by the creation of the trust. The burden of proof is on the creditor.
* The laws of the Turks and Caicos Islands override the laws in all other jurisdictions unless the conditions of the trust specify otherwise.
* Turks and Caicos trusts are private and confidential.

There is no requirement that the settlor's name be mentioned anywhere in the trust documentation.

Legislation has been drafted and will soon be enacted which will require all individuals and companies carrying out trustee services to be licensed and regulated.

No person or company will then be able to act as a professional trustee without being licensed or being granted an exemption by the Financial Secretary.

How to establish a Trust in the Turks and Caicos Islands: It is not difficult to establish a trust in the Turks and Caicos Islands. Any individual or company can contribute assets to a Turks and Caicos Islands Trust.

Four important appointments are needed:

* Appoint professional tax advisors.
* Appoint professional legal advisors to assist in the structuring of the trust.
* Appoint the trustee(s).
* To ensure that trustees have maintained accurate accounting records, it is recommended that an accountant or auditor is appointed.

Once these appointments have been made, the formation of the trust should be straightforward and completed expeditiously.

Fees: Initially legal fees will be incurred when the trust is established. On an annual basis typical fees may include the trustees' fees, bookkeeping fees and possibly audit fees.

The level of professional fees will depend on the services required. Generally fees can be estimated in advance of any work being performed. There are no government fees of any kind levied on trusts.

Reflections on Christmas in the Turks & Caicos

- A view by Marjorie Simms -

As the common cold is to each of us, so is nostalgia. Each of us has each of these at some time or the other. Bouts of nostalgia occur at Christmas time. We can look back and have fond memories of past Christmases.

Do you remember the picnic ham in its salt and greasy water upon the fire-hearth with its smoke getting in you eyes? Do you remember Uncle Nat Selver blowing "Christians Awake" from up North to the Church? What else do you remember? The days spent gathering enough eggs? The early morning services? The smell of new linoleum? What brings on your nostalgia?

Whatever it is that takes you back to them, there is something you must never forget: That was then and now is now. Time marches on and in its march brings changes with it. The donkey carts have almost disappeared now in favour of cars. The Tilley lamp and the starched dress and the yard-fowl are exceptions now. The rule happens to be Television, Christmas lights, and frozen turkeys and video games.

Perhaps you have nostalgia about past Christmases. Perhaps you wish for the time when, for you, Christmas was Christmas. However, that wish is only necessary if you have an incomplete view of Christmas and its real meaning.

The Word of God does not change. It was and it is and it shall be evermore. Christmas is about the Word becoming flesh. Christmas is a reminder of God becoming Man; it is about God veiled in flesh. This is the abiding truth which makes Christmas of any date and any age and any place truly Christmas.

When all is said and done, the meaning of Christmas is not determined by how we observe Christmas. What is important is whether or not we believe that Emmanuel means "God with us" as set out in the Gospels.

May we still know the guiding hand of Almighty God upon us as individuals, upon our homes and upon our Nation.

Message from the Governor

H.E. Governor Michael Bradley

Every Christmas since 1987 my family and I have had the great joy in joining with all the people of the Turks and Caicos Islands in celebrating Christmas, the birthday of the Redeemer, and each year I have taken the opportunity to look briefly back at the major events of the year and to look forward to the year ahead. 1991 has been an eventful one for the Territory with events as diverse as a General Election, the extradition of a major drug trafficker, the opening of our first ever casino in the Islands, and the collapse of the major airline carrier.

Whilst we are a small and reasonably remote Territory, events in the outside world cannot fail to impact on us, both for good and for bad. In the early part of this year, we saw the turn around in tourism which led to hopes for the best season ever in 1992. As the year ends through events outside our control we are having to struggle to take all steps possible to ensure that the expected rise in tourism will take place.

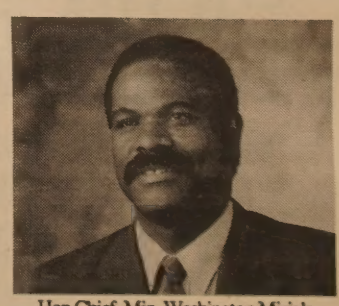
As we look forward into the New Year one anniversary that the whole world will be focusing on is the First Landfall of Christopher Columbus in the New World. The last few years have produced new and exciting scientific evidence to support our belief that First Landfall took place here in Grand Turk. It is an event that for better or for worse, changed the world dramatically and we should all be proud to be part of the Territory where that event took place. Everyone in the Islands should seek to ensure that our just claims receive worldwide recognition.

The Turks and Caicos Islands are growing, changing and developing and we must all be prepared to work to support these changes in ways that are for the future benefit of the Territory. We must be prepared to accept into our community persons whose talents and labour will benefit the Territory. In turn those coming to help us should and must appreciate that the future of the Islands must be shaped by the policies and wishes of the people of the Islands.

Once again, may I on behalf of my wife, Patricia, our son, Michael, and myself thank all the people of the Territory for the encouragement and support they have always given to us and for the way that we have been made welcome in the Islands. I look forward to the Quincenntenial Year and hope that it will be a year of even greater prosperity and progress brought about by the continued hard work and dedication of all who live here.

May God bless each and every one of us this Christmas and in 1992.

Message from the Chief Minister



Hon. Chief Min. Washington Misick

No one can deny that 1991 has been a moment in time of major events many of which have created sweeping changes both at home and abroad. The hostility between the Super Powers has completely dissipated on the demise of communism and the break up of Russia. We witnessed the unification of Germany after many years and new emerging democracies in many parts of Eastern Europe - phenomena not imagined a year ago. The international financial fraud perpetrated by BCCI has also shocked and affected the entire world.

Closer at home, we witnessed the overthrow of the first democratically elected President in Haiti for over fifty years. The continued decline in the economic fortunes of many Caribbean States and the world's economy, generally, also had its impact.

And following the shut down of Pan American World Airways after sixty years in business, shock waves were sent through the Caribbean tourism industry.

The election of a New Government in the Turks and Caicos Islands has seen a number of changes locally as well.

Against this background, it is safe to say that the only thing which is constant is change itself. However, thank God that, on balance, the Turks and Caicos Islands have been a net benefactor of the good fortunes of 1991.

That is not to say that there are not those among us who may be in serious need. Let us show our thanks and gratitude for the birth of the Christ Child by bringing happiness to the homes and hearts of all with our gift of love.

One song writer says: "What the world needs now is love". I pray for an extra portion of God's love to permeate our beautiful Islands this holiday removing the petty differences and uniting us around a new purpose.

That purpose must include a determination to strive not only for what is the best in character-building and prosperity for each of us but also the determination to build the best and most prosperous small country in our corner of the world.

By all means, think of the Christ Child - not so much as a meek and humble child but, moreso, as a victorious Saviour and Lord and let it make a difference to us - a difference in our relationship to our fellowmen, for, as much as we demonstrate our care, concern and commitment to our fellowmen, we show our love for God.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy, Prosperous and Healthy 1992 to all inhabitants of the Turks and Caicos Islands from my family and me.

A Historical look at Christmas

- by E. O. James

CHRISTMAS [Old English, Cristes maesse, "the Mass of Christ"], the English name of the Feast of the Nativity of Christ, kept on December 25 in Western Christendom.

The turn of the year in mid-winter has long been the occasion of calendrical observances as a precaution against supernatural forces thought then to be rampant and as a way to ensure the renewal of the waning power of the sun at this Solstice.

Thus, in pagan Rome on December 17, a Saturnalia was held as a popular holiday on honour of Saturn, the ancient god of husbandry and sowing. Later, the festival lasted seven days, becoming a time of feasting, orgies and mirth, and the reversal of the normal order of master and servant.

In Teutonic and Celtic Europe, when Yuletide was transferred from November to the darkest period from mid-December to Mid- January, its fire rites and vegetation ceremonies were given expression in the Yule log, evergreen decorations (e.g. ivy, mistletoe, and holly), feasting and rejoicing, wassailing, carols, and exchange of gifts, together with mortuary customs transferred to the winter festival from the cult of the dead in November.

At the beginning of the Christian era to date of the birth of Christ was a matter of speculation in the absence of any precise indications in the Gospel narratives as to the day, month, or even the year when it occurred.

No reference, in fact, exists to the observance of a festival to commemorate the event until December 25 was set apart as the Feast of the Nativity in the Philocalian Calendar, which was drawn up in Rome in 336. In the eastern Church, Epiphany was held on January 6, commonly regarded as the old Christmas Day, though in the first instance it was mainly celebrated in honor of the Baptism of Christ.

In Syria however, the Nativity was included in the observance and in Jerusalem at the end of the fourth century the Incarnation rather than the Baptism may have been given prominence. In the Roman liturgical year in the fifth century, Christmas Day having been established independently on December 25, Epiphany was assigned to the visit of the Magi to Bethlehem, together with the baptism and the first miracle of Christ at Cana of Galilee. This sequence of the commemoration has been retained in the West in the ecclesiastical Christmas festival.

A trio from Int. School of the West Indies, all painted-up, await the Polar Express at their School concert.

The selection of December 25 for the Feast of the Nativity was determined in all probability to counteract the Roman Saturnalia and the Mithraic Natalis Solis Invicti, held in honour of the birth of the sun at the Winter Solstice, though the Saturnalia actually ended on December 24. Nevertheless, the two events doubtless react on each other, both Christmas and Epiphany, having been based originally on Solstice festivals (the discrepancies arising from the defective dating in the Alexandria calender).

At this critical season at the turn of the year the Early Church was confronted with a very firmly established and highly organised calendrical ritual situation, centered in the solar cultus. It was therefore, appropriate and expeditious to set the birth of the son, (son of righteousness) as the "true light of the world" against the pagan Natalis Invicti on December 25.

As Christianity spread in northern Europe, however, its Feast of the Nativity came into contact with the Yuletide rites and customs which were so entrenched in the region, that as late as the eighth century Boniface had to deal drastically with the pagan accretions in the Church there. Indeed, the repeated denounciations in canons, homilies, and penitentials for the next three hundred years show that these pagan rites persisted until the beginning of the second millennium [c.1025].

It is not surprising therefore, that a great variety of seasonal customs and beliefs from a number of different sources - Romans, Celtic, and Teutonic, Western Asia, and Christian - have clustered round this composite observance: solar, solstitial, calendrical and ecclesiastical, derived from Graceo-Roman, Nordic, Germanic, and Slavonic sources.

These customs often have been only remotely related to the Christian Feast of the Nativity as such, though the occurrence of the commemoration in the greater part of Europe in the darkest and coldest part of the year had given prominence to fires and lights and to outward signs and symbols of renewal in nature and the sun.

These universal associations are capable of interpretations in relation to the incarnation as the beginning of a new era, Ano Domini. In accordance with these several aspects of Christmas illuminations and fires, food and fellowship, gifts and greetings, and greenery have remained permanent features of the festival everywhere, bearing witness to its diverse history but given a deeper spiritual meaning and purpose as the commemoration of the birth of the Christ child.

In Sweden, the festivities began with "Little Yule" on December 3, St. Lucia's Day, when a girl was elected Queen or Bride and paraded through her village wearing a crown of lighted candles, a custom widely observed in Scandinavia and Finland. Or again, the burning of the Yule log or candle, between Christmas and Epiphany (Twelfth Night), together with bonfires and processions, and in Scotland the ancient Hogmanay festivities, held at midnight on January 31 to usher in the New Year, are traditions that have persisted through the ages.

The Christmas Tree, imported to England from Germany largely through the influence of Prince Albert replaced the oak sacred to Odin, while in Somerset the Holy thorn (Crataegus praecox) at Glastonbury has been alleged to bloom on January 6, having sprung from the staff of Joseph of Arimathea, according to the ancient-legend.

The decoration of houses and churches with greenery and lights, the singing of carols, the special fare, such as the boar's head, turkey, Christmas puddings, cakes and mince pies, and in recent years (since 1844) the exchange of Christmas cards, are old traditions at this season.

The representation of the crib or manger [presepe] at Bethlehem, probably first introduced, by St. Francis of Assisi at Grecio in 1224, has become a very popular devotional custom in churches in Western Christendom, and at Santa Maria Maggiore in Rome the reputed relics of the crib at Bethlehem are still venerated.

Everywhere midnight masses on Christmas Eve attract large congregations. In Scotland and New England, Christmas rites and customs were so vigorously suppressed by the Puritans that many of them have lapsed, in contrast to traditionally Catholic countries like Ireland, Spain, Italy, France, and Mexico where cribs, processions, and Nativity mystery plays have been and are a characteristic feature of the season.

In Brazil, where Christmas occurs in Midsummer, bonfires, fireworks and carnivals culminate in the Midnight Mass, thereby combining the ecclesiastical and popular observers of the festival.

Joy to the World

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them.

NFL rushes into playoffs; NBA airs Christmas Day

BY CHRISTOPHER HULL

This week, the National Football League's regular season ends with the Monday-night game between the Chicago Bears and the San Francisco 49ers (ABC) on Dec. 23, and NBC's coverage of the National Basketball League begins with two games on Christmas Day, Dec. 25. Not surprisingly, one of them will showcase Michael Jordan and the champion Chicago Bulls.

Michael Jordan

But first up is the Los Angeles Lakers visiting the Los Angeles Clippers. If there is a team in the NBA with an identity problem, it is the Clips. Perennial back-seaters to the headline-grabbing Lakers, the Clippers are more likely to feel like visitors than the home team when their cross-town counterparts travel to the L.A. Memorial Sports Arena.

The Lakers started out slowly this season, but after Magic Johnson announced his retirement, the team shook free of its initial shock and rebounded by working its way to the top of the Pacific Division by early December. Still, the NBA season lasts until April, and the jury is still out on how the team will make up the loss of Magic's leadership.

The late game features the healthy, resurgent Boston Celtics visiting Chicago Stadium for their second meeting of the season with Mr. Jordan and the Bulls. The first time around, in early November, the teams played at creaky old Boston Garden, and the Bulls thoroughly dominated the Celtics, winning their shootout by 132-113.

Still, at the beginning of December, the Celts were battling the New York Knicks for the top spot in the Atlantic Division. Through the first month of the season, Larry Bird was shooting better than 50 percent from the field and seemed to be unhampered by the heel problems that have limited his effectiveness for the past two seasons.

But through the early going, Jordan's Chicagoans were the class of the league. The Bulls entered December playing better than .850 ball, which carried them to the top of the Central Division and to the best record in basketball.

• While the Bears-Niners game closes out the NFL regular season, it'll only be a short five-day wait for the playoffs to begin. On Saturday, Dec. 28, ABC picks right up with coverage of two Wild Card games. Sites and teams had yet to be set at deadline, but the Monday-night crew of Dan Dierdorf, Frank Gifford and Al Michaels covers one game, and Brent Musburger, Lynn Swann and Dick Vermiel cover the other.

Put Christ back into Christmas

- wise men still seek him

Dear Editor,

Christmas means different things to different people. However, when the various and diverse ways of celebrating this festive and joyous occasion are taken together, it all boils down to the recognition of the simple fact that nearly 2000 years ago in the small and insignificant Judaean Village of Bethlehem, a very unusual boy was born.

He was the child of Promise born in the Land of Promise and wise men still seek Him. The prophet Isaiah looking forward with a prophetic eye to this glorious event, prophesied that a virgin would indeed bring forth a son and His name would be called Emmanuel, meaning "God with us". The prophet Isaiah further likened this child to "a tender plant" and "a root out of a dry ground" and said that He would be "despised and rejected, a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief" and the judgement that sinful mankind so rightly deserve would eventually fall upon Him.

Yes, this was a very unusual child indeed. The angels, with great excitement, announced His arrival and even the stars of heaven twinkled with joy and delight at his birth.

None born of woman had affected the destiny of mankind as has Mary's little boy. This event introduced a new Epoch in God's dealing with man; the course of history was forever altered and nothing would ever be the same again.

Jesus was born in the ghetto. His mother just happened to live on the wrong side of town and would have easily qualified for welfare. "He who was rich became poor so that through His poverty we may become rich."

Of this very fact wrote the apostle John, declaring that: "Before anything else existed, there was Christ with God. He has always been alive and is Himself God. He created everything and there is nothing in existence that He didn't make."

Saint John further testified that: "Christ was alive when the world began, yet I myself have seen Him with my own eyes and listened to Him speak. I have touched Him with my own hands and testify that this Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

Strange indeed are the ways of God! Who on earth would have guessed that little baby boy, so innocent and pure, was at once the Saviour of the world and the Judge of all the earth. We are compelled to humbly bow the knee and declare with the great apostle Paul "Oh the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God, how unsearchable are His judgements and His ways past finding out."

So we see that this glorious event was never really intended as a time of celebration for the drunkards and gluttons. Rather, it is a sacred reminder of that time so very long ago when the eternal destiny of the human race was bound up with the life of a little child.

This love child, wrapped in swaddling clothes, is God's Christmas gift to mankind. This child who came to be man's saviour and Lord and enter with great joy into "that place that He has gone to prepare for those that love Him" or you will reject Him and be cast out "into utter darkness where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

And, if perchance, you are ever tempted to doubt the reality of hell just stop and ask yourself whether an all-wise and all-knowing God would have sent His only son into the world to die such a cruel death on the cross to save us from something that doesn't exist.

When you deny the existence of hell, you are in fact saying that God is not only a liar but that He is also a proper fool. The fact is, there are no unbelievers in hell. Hell is certain to make a believer out of you. The problem is, you would believe too late, only to discover to your utter horror that the dreadful place has no exit.

So, on Christmas day, as we celebrate our Saviour's birth let us endeavour to focus on the One without whom the day would have no meaning.

Let us put Christ back into Christmas and the spirit of this glorious day will linger with us and bless us throughout the New Year.

Happy Holidays,

Stafford Missick

The Christmas spirit's alive

The Christmas spirit has been encroaching slowly but surely in Providenciales and the rest of the Turks and Caicos Islands, this year.

In both Grand Turk and Providenciales, there were tree- lighting ceremonies. And, in Providenciales, in particular, the use of fairy lights to decorate buildings and other fixtures, has helped to jazz-up things.

For the last two weeks, a drive along Leeward highway at night, would have served as a timely reminder - for anyone needing to be reminded - that Christmas is around the corner.

Nowhere would have these telltale reminders been in greater evidence than in the WPRT (radio) compound where the perimeter of the roof of the front building, a satellite dish and a good portion of the tall antenna were all bedecked with fairy lights.

Then, a few stone-throws west of WPRT - by Suzie Turn, to be more precise - Brenda Sue, the rehabilitated once-famous sailboat on display, was also bedecked with fairy lights adding a touch of festivity to the season.

The lone occupant is Santa Claus.

And, as Christmas Day draws nigh, there has been a noticeable increase in activities in Downtown Provo as the Supermarkets and liquor stores do somewhat brisker-than-usual business.

Reminders that Christmas is around the corner were also evident in some offices and stores which have strung up buntings, baloons and other Christmas decorations. A series of other activities - mainly Christmas parties and dinners, as well as Christmas concerts - have also been serving as timely reminders.

As early as November 30, for example, the staff and students of Clement Howell High School ushered in the yuletide season with their well-attended Christmas Concert which featured, among other items, the school choir offering well-done renditions of mainly Christmas carols, a dramatisation of the Christmas story and well-applauded performances by Javon La Porte on Saxaphone and by pop singer Commenechi Ewing.

By mid-month, the countdown to Christmas had also included the following activities:

December 4: Mrs. Emma Newman's Richmond Hills Preparatory School cordially welcomed the community to their Variety Christmas Programme.

More than forty youngsters ranging in ages from four to twelve, presented a varied agenda of choral singing, solos, instrumental selections, dance, poetry, dramatic readings and a play.

The school could hardly contain either the overflowing audience or the exuberance of the joyous performers. The costumed children charmed the hearts of all; proud parents and family beamed throughout the evening, as the diligent teachers worked behind the scene to keep the programme flowing.

December 5: Ramada Turquoise Reef Resort and Casino hosted its "light-up a life" tree-lighting ceremony in the middle of its car park and at which nearly 3,000 dollars was presented to the Provo Association for the Handicapped (PATH).

A huge symbolic cardboard cheque for the amount was presented to PATH President Mr. Joe Hall, by Ramada General Manager, Mike Griffith.

The money was raised from donations of a minimum of five dollars per light for the Xmas tree.

The "lighted" Christmas tree at Ramada's Light-up-a-life ceremony shortly after the switch had been flicked.

Earlier, the large gathering was treated to the singing of carols by students of the Clement Howell High School and of the several primary schools on the island.

Education Minister, Hon. Robert Hall, also extended Christmas greetings to the gathering and praised the scores of school children for their contribution to the evening's programme.

December 7: The International School of the West Indies held their Xmas fete and fund-raising activity (Santa Claus included) at Market Place

December 9: The precious Treasures Nursery and Preschool filled the sanctuary of the Faith Tabernacle Church with joyful sounds.

"Our oldest students are aged four years old, and the youngest are one and an half, so we are somewhat bold in even attempting to host a programme," said Mrs. Yvonne Hutchinson, headteacher of the preschool.

Those worries were unfounded as the tiny tots sang and wandered about the stage, delighting the audience by just being joy-filled children in the spotlight. The three and four year olds remained on stage for the thirty minute programme; their spontaneity and concentration were wonderful, and a tribute to their teachers. Santa (known in this world as Camille Slattery), made an appearance and distributed gifts to all the good little boys and girls.

December 10: The Second Annual Night of Christmas Music unfolded at the Ramada Banquet room. Hon. C. Washington Misick, Chief Minister, and Mr. Mark Capes, Deputy Chief Secretary, were patrons of this fund raiser for the Blue Hills Methodist Church. Mr. Bill Clare, Asst. Chief Secretary, welcomed the 200 guests who purchased $10 tickets.

More than a dozen soloists, including Mr. Willie Wilson from the Bahamas, rang in the Christmas spirit with Mr. Hugh Fulford on the piano while Mr. Chris Rigby played the keyboard and tended the sound system.

December 11: Turtle House School hosted an afternoon Christmas Programme. The 16 costumed students presented a fantasy tale featuring a Snow Queen and winter palace, a good witch, visits to Lapland that were complete with reindeer, and the enchantment of a child who was redeemed through the love of a true friend.

Following the performance, the children shared prayers of thanks and sang, while Frosty the Snowman glided across the stage.

Mr. Reuben Hall, newly appointed chairman of the board of directors, closed the programme with gifts to the teachers and a parent. Outgoing teacher Ms. Ros Lloyd, also presented a hand made gift to the school.

December 12: The International School of the West Indies staged their Christmas programme outdoors under the stars. Mrs. Effie Brown, the principal, welcomed the guests, then the 72 children in costumes enacted the story from The Polar Express.

A glittering train and conductor, circus performers, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Wizard of Oz characters, Santa, elves, Rudolph and the Seven Reindeer, angels, the rabbit from Alice in Wonderland, and the wisemen, all cavorted across the stage.

Smiles and chuckles from the audience are the hallmarks of children's performances and there was plenty of that. Exiting the stage from the 35-minute presentation, the children mingled with their family and friends, bringing their spirit of goodwill to all.

December 13: The Provo Chamber of Commerce hosted its Christmas Gala fundraiser at the Ramada. The estimated 100 guests who bought 50-dollar tickets had a sumptuous dinner and enjoyed the festive atmosphere. Speeches by Mark Capes, Deputy Chief Secretary and Tom Smith, Chamber President were brief. Miss Turks and Caicos was her usual charming self, and the music was lively, as Soley and the Gang set the beat for dancing.

The evening was complete with rum punch, an attentive staff who served white wine, spiced pumpkin soup, lobster and shrimp salad, an entree of beef Wellington garnished with beautifully presented vegetables, and a dessert of flambe baked Alaska.

Santa, equipped with sunglasses, strolled through the gathering and chose the winning tickets for the door prizes. Alfred's Place, Bamboo Gallery, Carib West, Dora's Restaurant, Hamilton and Pratt, Hey Jose, Island Sea Centre, NAPA, Ramada, and Tasty Temptations donated the prizes.

The Face-painting booth at the Xmas party at Market Place, proved to be a winner.

December 14: Santa Claus was seen being driven into Town from the New Early Learning Centre Toy Store. On his way into Town he stopped at a supermarket and bought lots of candies.

Meanwhile, at Press Time, the Soroptimists and Kiwanis clubs were preparing to join together this year for a Christmas tree lighting celebration on Wednesday December 18 at the downtown ballfield.

The Turks and Caicos Police band, members of the clergy and distinguished government representatives were all expected to be on hand for this community programme.

Donations were being solicited to provide sweets for children, fruit for the elderly and canned goods for those in need.

President of PATH, Mr. Joe Hall, receives a huge cardboard cheque from Mr.Mike Griffith as proceeds from Ramada's Light- up-a-life ceremony.

Tree-lighting Ceremony held in Grand Turk

The area in front Fulford's gas Station in Grand Turk came alive on December 11 when a large gathering of citizens turned out to participate in their community Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony.

The young and the old were present and the gathering was representative of a cross-section of the Grand Turk community.

Among those present for the ceremony which truly ushered in the Christmas season in the capital, were Chief Minister Hon. C. Washington Misick and Opposition Leader, Hon. Derek Taylor both of whom participated in the decorating of the tree.

The ceremony was sponsored by the Turks and Caicos Tourist Board, Turks and Caicos Utilities and Secair Ltd. and the opening remarks were made by well-known elderly citizen, Ms. Helena Robinson.

One highlight of the programme was a well-received, crowd- pleaser - an interpretive dance done by Joe Robinson and to the tune of The Lord's Prayer. Robinson who played an active part in promoting the ceremony, is currently resident in Jamaica but is home on holiday.

Other key features included "Reflections of a native Christmas" by Ms. Marjorie Simms, Secretary to the Manager of Barclays Bank in Grand Turk, music provided by the Police Band and a medley of Christmas songs by Mr. Hugh Fulford.

Members of the community and the pupils of Newman's Preparatory School also participated in decorating the tree which was lighted-up in three sections.

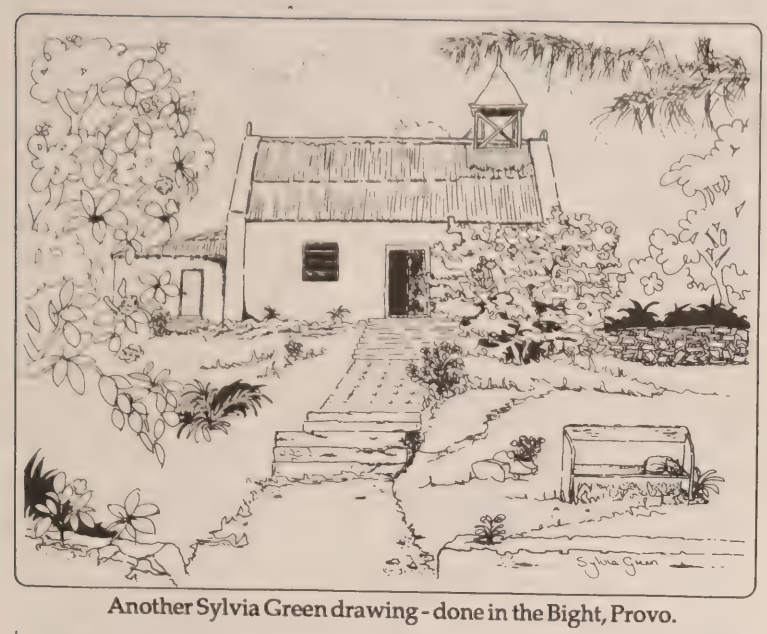
1992 Calendar captures the old-time Turks & Caicos spirit



Another Sylvia Green drawing - done in the Bight, Provo.

Sylvia Green, businesswoman and artist, has succeeded in capturing the traditional TCI spirit in a collection of simple drawings which she has published as part of her "Turks and Caicos Islands Calendar 1992."

The calendar which was launched at a simple ceremony late last month, features black and white drawings of mainly old buildings in the family islands.

The 11 x 8.5 handy and sturdy calendar which hangs easily on the wall features 12 drawings - one for each month of the year.

Starting with the drawing for January and ending with the one for December, they feature Lighthouse Point in Grand Turk; three houses in a yard at Blue Hills, Providenciales; a small house on a small farm in North Caicos (which Sylvia says is her favourite piece); a house and yard on a hill in the Bight in Providenciales; the Papillons Restaurant on Front Street, Grand Turk; Salt Raker Inn, Front Street, Grand Turk; "the Josephine," a boat in a yard in Providenciales; an old building behind Front Street in Grand Turk; a house in Whealand, Providenciales; a dive shop in Grand Turk; another Blue Hills, Providenciales house and the Sunshine Nursery in Providenciales.

Sylvia, a British Citizen, has been resident in the TCI over the last six years. She manages her store, Greensleeves, at Market Place, Leeward Highway which specialises in "an array of hand-crafted and unique gifts and objet d'art."

In an interview with Free Press, she explained that she usually tries to "capture the character or the feel of the islands through the older buildings like the churchs and the restaurants.

"They have a lot of charm," she said but she lamented that changes have already been made to some of these old buildings.

And, explaining what prompted her to produce the calendars, she said she "wanted to give something that belongs to the islands - the island feel - not the modern trend." She said that to, date, there has been a fairly good response to the calendars which have been three years in the making and which are being sold for about 15 dollars each.

She said she has already started giving some thought to producing a similar calendar for 1993.

Message from PNP Chairman

Dear Friends,

As We celebrate this Christmas, let us remember what Christmas means to all of us. Christmas represents a day of celebration and a day to give thanks to our Lord and Saviour for the birth of his Son, Jesus, who is the Saviour of the world.

In these internationally troubled economic times, it is easy for us to forget to give thanks to God for the blessings he has bestowed upon us. But we must continue to be grateful for those things that God has provided us. We must continue to give blessings and pray God's guidance upon the Government of the Turks and Caicos Islands.

Let us pray this Christmas for the wisdom to continue to do the things that are pleasing in the sight of God, so that he may forever bless the people of these Islands.

On behalf of the members and supporters of the Progressive National Party, I take this opportunity to wish all our people, friends, visitors and all who have come to live among us, a Joyous Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Mr. Joe Hall, Chairman PNP

Message from Leader of the Opposition

My people, my wish for you this season, as always, go beyond a merry Christmas and a happy new year. Therefore, I wish you strength and joy that come from inner peace - that peace which passes all understanding and which leaves you with a sense of well-being and a freedom which can settle and secure you for the love of God.

Thanks must be given to God for all his goodness and mercies to us and to all mankind as we celebrate this Christmas. And, remember the great benifits that we have received from His hands which cause us to encourage, support and stir up each other to good works.

Through the Grace of God and the commitment and determination of our people, we can have a better standard of living and a better quality of life here in these peaceful Turks and Caicos Islands.

And, as we reflect on the past year, the crisis at home and abroad, this Christmas calls us at this time more than ever before, to take stock of our lives and the love we have for our fellow man.

Therefore, we must develop a zeal, a passion for justice, righteousness, a caring concern for pursuing and doing the things which make for holiness with our whole being - hearts, minds, souls and strength.

May the love which brought about that first Christmas be present in our lives, our homes, our work, our all.

As we think about the walls that are tumbling down in our lives and the recession that we are going through, Christmas calls us to have hope, keep hope alive, to make sacrifices, to share, to love our neighbours as we love ourselves, and in the midst of the noise and confusion of it all realise that God is with us - not just now , but always - moving in His mysterious way, performing His wonders, planting His footsteps in the sea and riding upon the storms.

That is the reason why I take this time out to thank you for your love and prayers, your support and encouragement that have kept me going.

Many of you have gone and still continue to go the extra mile to bring about a season of hope, prosperity and wellbeing.

May God continue to be the One in whose name we minister and serve the present age.

I am blessed that I could not have been called to any higher service than that of my God and my country.

On behalf of my family, Loleta, Edwin, Shekiera, Shiree and myself, and of course, the People's Democratic Movement, I wish you a most blessed Christmas and a New Year filled with the presence of God.

Blue Mood at Bamboo Gallery

Several paintings featuring the work of Haitian Artist Charles Dufranc will go on display in Providenciales on December 21 when Bamboo Gallery at Market Place, Leeward Highway, stages an exhibition entitled "Blue Mood".

The exhibition will get underway at 6:00 pm at the gallery where the paintings by Dwight Outten, said to be an "up-and-coming young painter from Middle Caicos" and sculpture by Ana Elena Leon, said to be an internationally recognised artist from Medellin, Columbia, will also be on display.

Several of Dufranc's paintings capture the colours of the Caribbean countryside and they feature landscapes from Haiti.

The exhibition is scheduled to get underway at 6pm.

Workshop on Public-Private Sector Forum

Representatives of the private and public sectors met in Grand Turk on December 12 and pooled ideas for the launching of a Public-Private Sector Forum in keeping with the Government's motto of "Progress through Partnership."

The all-day workshop featured addresses by Governor Michael Bradley and Chief Minister Washington Misick and it focussed on ways of ensuring that the forum is established as an effective instrument for fostering the orderly development of the TCI through the active involvement of the people working hand in hand with the Government.

According to Government Economist, Mr. Richard Stonemen, who co-ordinated the workshop, "the future prospects of the Turks and Caicos are very dependent upon closer links being built up between the public and private sectors" and "it is essential that both sides get a better understanding of the constraints they are working under and are able to work jointly and constructively to overcome such constraints."

He said the forum will be charged with "exploring, advising and acting on matters of mutual public-private sector interest to further the appropriate development of the Turks and Caicos Islands."

The participants had at their disposal, an "outline structure" for the forum drawn up by the Government to serve as a resource document or guide for the discussions.

Key elements of the Government's outline included suggestions that the forum be chaired by the Chief Minister and that it should be constituted as a 12-member steering committee (with provision for alternate representatives) which should meet monthly with the meetings rotating between Grand Turk and Providenciales.

At the end of the day's session, Chief Minister, Hon. C. Washington Misick hosted a reception at his residence for the several participants.

Special edition of Telephone Directory

Cable and Wireless says its new telephone directory will be a "special edition" which will be bigger and better and that it will be available to subscribers very early in the new year.

"Our new telephone directory will be available shortly after January 1st, 1992," the company said in its December, 1991 newsletter.

It continued:"This year, it is a special edition, being larger than previous years both in thickness and physical size. It is also the first year to have a Tourist Section as part of the directory, a colour glossy section detailing telephone numbers specially for the tourist."

The company also announced 12 new sites for public card phones and that it has started running new telephone cables in the Bight on Providenciales.

Seven of the 12 new card phones will be installed in Providenciales - at the Ramada Hotel, Leeward Marina, the Customs Building at South Dock, the Environmental Health Department in Blue Hills, near Grant's Gas Station in Blue Hills, and one each in Five cays and in the Bight.

The other five new public cardphones will be located in Grand Turk - at the maternal Health Clinic, Noel Roberts Food Store, Irene Godet Food Store, Columbus House (formerly Ocean View Hotel) and at Grand Turk Hospital.

Meanwhile, according to the company, as a result of the "re-cabling" programme in the Bight, persons in that area who have been waiting for telephone service, "will receive service fairly soon." "If you are waiting for a telephone, please check (to ensure) that we have your application on record," the company advised residents of the Bight.

Meanwhile, well-placed sources say that Mr. Martin Robinson, Cable and Wireless's Manager in Providenciales will be leaving shortly on transfer.

WATCI launch project

The Water Sports Association of the Turks and Caicos Islands (WATCI), a ten month old committee, formed to help preserve our natural resources. This group is developing educational guidelines, and marketing strategies which incorporate respect for natural resources, and environmental awareness. This respect and awareness is to be encouraged in visitors and residents alike.

Running with the promotional theme "Help us to keep and preserve the natural treasures of the sea and beaches" the Association membership is devoting time and energy in helping preserve the dive spots, coral reefs, seagrass beds, beaches and marine treasures of the Islands.

Active participation from both private sector and government, (the Ministry of Natural Resources), is leading to conferences, workshops and the setting up of awareness campaigns.

Philippe Kunz, an active member responsible for distributing informative leaflets in Providenciales on the national parks, told the Free Press "We are working closely with the Government and National Parks Planning Committee to recommend official permanent anchorage sites to protect our world famous reefs and waters. Both winter and summer proposals are currently being examined".

The Association's Vice President, Art Pickering endorsed these comments and added: "People from all the water sports related industries are working closely together. We are trying to assist the Government in any way we can to provide safety guidelines and establish continuity between operators, so that we are all working in one direction."

The 15-member committee attracts members from mainly dive and water sports related operations in the Islands. Their goals are to work together to offer visitors and residents the best beaches, clean water, and underwater world. The committee believes that the preservation of our environment is the very base on which the future health and wealth of the country rests. They feel that there is an urgent need to tighten up the legal protection regulations concerning fisheries, natural parks, nature reserves and sanctuaries in the TCI.

Through educational outreach, WATCI is taking time to explain to members of the community and visitors alike, why fish trapping and netting of turtles are no longer wise practices.

Executive Tours moves into expanding mode, increases fleet

Executive Tours Ltd., one of the TCI's leading ground transportation companies has moved into an expansion mode and now boasts five forms of transportation facilities as a result of its latest investment totalling some quarter million dollars.

Company President Manny Misick told the Free Press Executive Tours which will celebrate its seventh anniversary later this month - December 23 - now has a fleet of 10 buses for its public bus service and its charter bus service, four taxi-cabs, two limousines and a wrecker/towing vehicle.

The latest additions to the fleet are five buses - including one for an improved school bus service; four vans, each registered to carry seven passengers; the two limousines; and, the wrecker/towing vehicle.

He said the recent expansion was financed with assistance from the Bank of Nova Scotia which has backed his company from its inception seven years ago when it started out with three buses, each equipped to carry 40 passengers.

For some while, Executive Tours concentrated on servicing Club Med by moving club members to and from the Airport and the resort, taking them on picnics and excursions and transporting Club Med workers to and from work.

During the construction of the Ramada Hotel, as well as after the opening of Ramada, it also became involved in transporting Ramada workers.

And, a few months ago, after the school bus service which was being provided by the Parent Teachers Association of the Clement Howell High School ran into difficulties because the lone bus had broken down, Executive Tours started providing a regular daily bus service for CHHS students. This entails transporting students from as far east as the Bight and as far south as Five Cays.

Mr. Manny Missick, President of Executive Tours.

One of the newly acquired buses which is equipped with fans, a tape deck and a public address system and which can accomodate about 75 students, is being used as the school bus to provide a service which Manny says is not a profitable one "break even" it would have to earn an additional approximately one dollar per day from each of the 70 or so students who use the service.

He explained, however, that Executive Tours is committed to providing the service for as long as the school - which hopes to repair its own bus - wants the service. He said a suggestion that the Education Ministry should meet the additional one dollar per day, per student, has already been raised with that Ministry.

He says even if the school's PTA were to repair its bus and start providing the service again at the rate of two dollars per day, per child, the PTA will continue to experience problems because the fare is uneconomic.

Also, as a result of the acquisition of the additional buses, Executive Tours recently introduced a regular, public bus service linking the Bight, Five Cays and Northside with Downtown Provo.

Manny says this service which is directed at providing the general public - workers and shoppers in perticular - with a reliable and inexpensive means of transportation, has got off to a slow start but Executive Tours hopes to provide the service in 90-minute cycles with each leg costing two dollars per passenger.

He says Executive Tours also intends to promote the setting up of bus stops and bus sheds along the routes.

As part of the taxi service, a 24-hour dispatch arrangement is already in place - an arrangement which Manny says has been introduced because of repeated complaints by residents and visitors alike that it is often very difficult to summon and to get a taxi in Providenciales - especially at night.

The introduction of the wrecker /towing service represents a first for the island. And, according to Manny, Executive Tours concluded that this service was necessary because it has become rather commonplace to see motor vehicles being left on the roadside for several days before being removed after "breaking down".

Both Manny and his son, (Operations Manager) Richard have had extensive experience in Ground transportation having worked in the Bahamas as representatives of a leading Canadian headquartered ground transportation company for several years.

Fitness seminar on the lower back

Mrs. Mary Bromily, a visiting British physiotherapist who specialises in rehabilitating humans and thoroughbred horses, recently dispelled a number of myths as she shared a wealth of information and current news about the field of orthopedic medicine.

The occasion was a one-day seminar on the lower back held on December 7 at the Erebus Fitness Club, Turtle Cove, Providenciales.

The seminar was jointly presented by Darlene Hudson of Erebus Fitness Club and Dr. Sam Slattery with Bromily, Slattery's mother, as guest speaker.

"More people are crippled by incorrect support from shoes that have built-in arch support than are helped by them," Bromily explained as she dispelled one popular myth.

"Sensors in the bottom of the feet cannot protect the foot from injury when encased in improperly fitting shoes," she also stressed.

Bromley also shared a number of interesting anecdotes with the participants.

"Joints are loaded with sensors which talk to the surrounding muscles and ligaments. When there is an injury, this conversation immediately ceases thus inhibiting healing and allowing for further injury," she explained.

She continued: "One of the best ways of getting this conversation restarted, is by immediately and passively moving the injured joint."

She told the participants that it is never too late to recover mobility from injuries.

"The saddest words are 'it's too late.' I believe it's never too late to recover mobility from injuries," she contended, pointing out that while sometimes there might not be a 100 per cent recovery, an 85 per cent recovery might be possible.

The seminar marked the launching of the Erebus Fitness Club's series of programmes intended to deal with issues affecting the health and fitness of the community.

The day's programme addressed issues such as skeletal/muscular physiology and the doctor's role in diagnosing the cause of pain.

The resource persons focussed on a wholistic approach to health and fitness - an approach which incorporates medical treatment, exercise, good nutrition and the elimination of stress.

It was stressed that even after finding the best health professionals available for devising a treatment strategy, it would be up to the individual to effect changes in lifestyle if the goal of rehabilitation and good health is to be attained.

The day's programme also featured hands-on exposure for the participants. And, to emphasise the importance of hip and foot mobility in the prevention and treatment of back problems, the participants were exposed to the "hip hike" - an exercise which helps to strengthen the back muscles.

They were also treated to a demonstration of the use of the Nada chair - a padded device with straps which promotes correct posture and which is said to be especially beneficial for persons such as long-distance travellers and computer terminal operators who are usually required to sit for prolonged periods.

Also included on the day's programme were guided relaxation exercises conducted by Darlene Hudson and the screening of a video on aqua aerobic equipment.

Hudson has 14 years experience in the field of physical fitness and works as manager and sports and fitness therapist of the Erebus gym.

Dr. Slattery, a physician with a special interest in soft tissues and sport medicine, recently opened his own general practice, Inter-Island Medical Services, in Providenciales.

Bromily, a physiotherapist, is a fellow of the Chartered Society of Physiotherapists of Great Britain and she specialises in rehabilitating humans and thoroughbred race horses. She is also an advisor to the Swedish Government on back injury and prevention and advises the Royal Ballet in Britain.

Eta Been, a radiology technician and one of the sponsors of the seminar, was unavoidably absent due to an unscheduled work assignment at the UCLA hospital.

Dr. Slattery, Macy Bromily and Darlene Hudson shortly after the the lower-back seminar.

Free Press gets new editor

The Turks and Caicos Free Press announces the appointment of Mr. Courtney Gibson as its new Editor.

Mr. Gibson, a Guyanese and a journalist for the last 19 years, last worked with Turks and Caicos News before which he had worked as the Guyana representative of the Caribbean News Agency and as General Manager and Editor-in-Chief of Guyana's Chronicle Newspapers and Editor-in-Chief of the Guyana News Agency.

He graduated from the University of Guyana in 1976 as the best graduating student with a Diploma in Public Communication and he has travelled extensively, internationally, as a journalist on assignment and as the Guyana representative on international media organisations and at several international media conferences.

He also worked briefly with the Guyana diplomatic service in London before returning to Guyana to serve as the country's Deputy Chief Information Officer.

He also served as a member of a cabinet-appointed committee which made recommendations for restructuring and improving the government-owned media in Guyana; served as a member of a small team which formulated an information policy for the country; and, served on a committee which made recommendations for local television programming.

Before coming to the TCI earlier this year, he was President of the Guyana Press Association, a professional body charged with promoting the professional development and professional interests of Guyanese journalists.

Mr. Gibson's wife, Juliet - a trained teacher - and his two teenage daughters - Juel and Coel - joined him in the TCI recently while his son, Roald, is completing primary school in Guyana.

He says he is a cricket enthusiast, likes reading and writing and "following up" international affairs. He also "tries his hand" at poetry which he refers to as his "scribbled thoughts".

He has one small publication to his credit - "Zimbabwe, a Nation in Waiting" - a collection of articles written while he was in London (1979-1980) on the eve of Zimbabwe's independence.

As Editor of Free Press, he has been charged with reorganising and improving the paper.

WORLD BRIEFS

SOUTH AFRICA: The move towards the complete dismantling of apartheid in South Africa and the introduction of majority rule was expected to enter a new phase December 20 with the convening of a convention for a democratic South Africa.

President of the African National Congress (ANC), Mr. nelson Mandela, just back from a visit to the United States, and other black leaders were expected meet and negotiate with representatives of the South African Government the rewriting of the country's constitution to bring an end to white minority rule.

JAMAICA: The Jamaican Supreme Court has awarded the rights to Bob Marley's record catalogue to the late superstar's widow and children and to Island Logic Ltd., a record company.

Marley died intestate (without leaving a will) and the Jamaican Court was asked to settle certain matters pertaining to his estate.

On December 9, the court said it had rejected a 15.2 million dollar bid by MCA to gain the rights to Marley's record catalogue.

Instead, it ruled in favour of a 11.5 million offer by Marley's family and Island Logic Ltd., a small record company.

Meanwhile, the recent court announcement coincided with the birth of a second daughter for Marley's son Ziggy Marley and Island Logic has been reported as saying that it plans to release a collection of some 100 of Marley's songs.

THE SOVIET UNION: The death knell for what has long been known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR) or the Soviet Union, was sounded recently when the leaders of three of the republics - Boris Yeltsin of Russia, Leonid Kravchuk of the Ukranian and Stanislav Shushkevich of Byelorussia - announced that their republics had quit the USSR and formed their own commonwealth of independent states.

With the economic situation in the republics, generally, but in Moscow, in particular, reportedly worsening, this latest development which leaves President Mikhail Gorbachev's future very unclear, is also causing much concern, globally, about the future stability of that part of the world.

There are concerns also that the current instability can lead to a bloody civil war.

Of greatest concern is the security of the 27,000 nuclear warheads known to exist in the USSR.

EUROPE: Member countries of the European Community have signed an historic treaty which paves the way for a much more closely politically and economically united Europe by the end of this decade.

The treaty, some sections of which are still vague because of strong British opposition, was signed in the Netherlands and it provides for, among other things, moves towards the introduction of a common European Currency, the "ecu", special funding for Europe's poorer nations, and for unified policies on education, energy, the environment and public health.

UNITED STATES: TV Commentator Patrick Buchanan is challenging President George Bush for the republican Presidential nomination.

Also challenging Bush is former Ku Klux Klan member David Duke. Both men have been described as maverick Republicans and they are accusing Bush of betraying the cause of the conservatives in the Republican party.

Buchanan who is said to have strong support from the Republican Party's far-right wing, says he is running because it is time to put America first.

NEW YORK: City officials in New York are concerned about what they consider an alarming outbreak of drug-resistant tuberculosis (TB). Reports from New York say that there has been a resurgence of TB throughout the USA. The reports also say that 13 inmates and one guard in New York Prisons have died so far this year from TB strains that resist standard treatment.

GUATEMALA: The Guatemalan authorities say that since July, 45 people have died from cholera and that at least 1,293 have contracted the disease.

Since the outbreak of cholera was reported in Peru earlier this year, more than 2,000 people in Latin America have died from the disease.

Dependent Territories to tackle Europe jointly

The Chief Ministers of four British Dependent Territories in the Caribbean say that their territories' relationship with Europe, must be a matter of negotiation between the United Kingdom and Europe.

According to an official Government statement on Chief Minister Hon. C. Washington Misick's participation in the November 20-21 Fourth Europe/Caribbean Conference in Brussels, Belgium, the Chief Ministers agreed that their territories should combine efforts to make joint representation for concessions from the United Kingdom and Europe.

The Chief Ministers also agreed that they should hold a meeting of Chief Ministers in Montego Bay, Jamaica when they meet there next February for a meeting of Tourism Ministers.

And, referring to the question of independence, the statement said the Dutch and British Dependent territories "all expressed their lack of interest in political independence at this time."

"One fact became very clear and that is the fact that all of these territories are relatively prosperous in comparison with many of their independent neighbours," the statement said.

The other Chief Ministers from the Caribbean present at the conference were Emile Gumms of Anguilla; Lavity Stout of the British Virgin Islands; .....Mead of Montserrat.

Also present was Hon. Maria Liberia Peters, Prime Minister of the Dependent Territory of the Netherlands Antilles.

The following were listed as some of the conclusions (summarised) of the conference:

* Because of the dramatic rate of change in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, Europe may not give due consideration to issues affection the Caribbean region. The danger of marginalisation is very real.

* The Caribbean was unprepared for a world breaking into trading blocs. The region's response to such changes was too slow. More rapid movements towards trade liberalisation, the free movement of capital and labour and towards the removal of non-tariff barriers and the encouragement of the private sector were required.

* Caricom needed to be restructured and to be given greater executive responsibility to encourage both the deepening and the widening of regional integration and to give the region greater international negotiating power.

* The advantages offered to Mexico within NAFTA are likely to undercut many of the benefits the Caribbean enjoys under the CBI and Caribbean governments and the private sector are not paying enough attention to the new Europe because of their preoccupation with issues relating to NAFTA and EAI.

* Lome IV offers the region new avenues to exploit in terms of trade, aid and other forms of association. The unutilized or underutilized provisions of Lome IV relating to the private sector, trade between adjoining ststes and between adjoining ACP states needed urgent attention.

* The need for a satisfactory post-1991 regime for Caribbean bananas is a test case for the EC's ability to meet its commitments to developing countries in the Caribbean. The moral and legal assurances given by the EC in respect of bananas need to be reinforced in all EC capitals.

* On Dependent Territories, it was recognised that there was a need for detailed discussions between the territories concerned and the metropolitan power to determine a new form of relationship which recognises that there is no desire for independence and provides for adequate consultation.

* The importance of Puerto Rico and new financial mechanisms it was developing with the EC and other multilateral funding agencies was recognised and specific proposals of benefit to the region were discussed.

* It was agreed that there was a need for the Caribbean to make its case more forcefufly in Europe and a proposal to establish a Caribbean Council for Europe was welcomed and endorsed.

Chief Secretary is selected cost of some 520,000 pounds sterling and it will be fully funded by Her Majesty's Government.

In his September 24 Budget Speech, the Chief Minister had listed the following as the programme's objectives:

* reduce overstaffing, particularly at junior levels and to reduce vacancies at middle and senior levels and in professional and technical areas. This must be carried out within the overall ceilings agreed for Civil Service employment;

* improve levels of remuneration while controlling overall expenditure on the wage bill;

* raise the efficiency of public administration and the standards of service provision and contain the numbers of expatriate staff in the service;

* move towards economic self sufficiency by increasing revenue collections, budget reform and by containing expenditures;

* raise morale by improving the management of the service so that staff has clear job descriptions, appropriate work loads and levels of delegated authority, and also improved training and career prospects;

* improve revenue collection and financial management including budgeting systems;

* increase representation on Providenciales;

* monitor the performance of expatriates; and,

* review the role of the public sector in the economy and consider the case for privatisation and contracting out.
